“ I first met Clayton nearly twenty years ago in Aggieland, after meeting his sister, and from the start he carried a presence you couldn't miss. He was a man with a rare spirit—gentle, humble, and full of quiet strength. Through every trial life handed him, he kept a softness in his heart that never wavered. Clayton was the friend who showed up for people without being asked, who gave without keeping score, who made everyone around him feel seen and valued.

He had a way of believing in others in a way that made you believe in yourself. He offered encouragement freely, celebrated the victories of the people he cared about, and always found a way to bring light into even the hardest days. He was loyal in a way that's hard to describe—steadfast, constant, and genuine all the way through.

Some of my favorite memories are simple ones: sharing a plate at Pinchers, standing around a grill at a backyard barbecue, just talking about life. Moments that didn't seem extraordinary at the time, but now feel priceless, because they were pieces of who he was—open-hearted, generous, and always ready to make someone feel welcome.

More than anything, I hope he has found the peace he searched for. Clayton deserved peace. He deserved rest. And he deserved all the good he poured into others to be returned to him a hundred times over.

He will be missed—his kindness, his spirit, and the way he lifted people up without ever realizing how much he meant. Rest easy, Clayton. Your light won't be forgotten.

“ I had the pleasure of going to college last year with Clayton. Without him I wouldn't have made it to graduation. He left us a semester before graduation, and till this day my heart is heavy for that. I wish I could've been there the way he was always there for me in my troubled times we shared in school. I am a total stranger to his loved ones but know that he has had such a positive impact to me and I am forever grateful to have met him.

“ Clayton was such a bright personality when he came into the salon for his "do". I never knew what tidbit of wisdom he would share that day. I enjoyed him so much. He was a guy who knew how to make a person feel good. May peace and comfort from our Lord be with you and the family.

I am so sorry to hear this news. I used to cut your hair and the girls' hair when I lived in El Campo. I remember when Clayton was born. Please accept my deepest condolences. May the LORD wrap you and your family in His comforting embrace and grant you peace. Sending hugs and lifting you in prayer,
